

SAINT PETER'S CATHOLIC CHURCH

FEBRUARY 4, 2018

On leaving the synagogue he entered the house of Simon and Andrew with James and John. Simon's mother-in-law lay sick with a fever, they immediately told him about her. He approached, grasped her hand and helped her up. Then the fever left her and she waited on them. Mark 1:29-31

It has been just luck or the Holy Spirit at work that these last few columns have ended up in such a personal form. I want to share another experience with my grandfather that happened last weekend.

It is tough to keep my Grandpa Nick engaged in conversation. He can drift off to sleep quickly, but I still tried to spend a few hours with him to watch the replay of the St. Peter's basketball game.

At first, he did not seem all that interested, but as soon as the Franciscan Activity Center gym popped up on my computer and the big ST. PETER'S on the sideline lit up the screen, he reached for his bed's remote and sat himself up.

He did well for a nearly 94-year-old in failing health, only dozing off once or twice, and only to be awakened by a well-timed cough or extra loud "nice shot" from a motivated grandson. He would look over and smile, glad to see I was still there, and would look back at the game.

However, something amazing happened at the end of the game -- besides the fact that we won. A Extraordinary Minister of Holy Communion stopped in to bring the Blessed Sacrament. When Grandpa Nick realized what she was there for, he could not get me to get my laptop off his bedside cart fast enough.

You could tell he was uplifted by the Holy Spirit and was ready to receive the Eucharist. The extraordinary minister went through the readings and gave communion to my grandfather. It was a wonderful experience to see. Even with all his health issues and physical failings, all that seemed to disappear for just a few minutes.

Both of my grandparents still have a strong faith -- even as their physical bodies fail them. My grandmother doesn't remember much, but she does remember her prayers. Hopefully, they will celebrate 72 years of Matrimony later this month.

Their faith makes me yearn for more of it in my own life. I am the first to admit this last year has been quite tough, and at times, very challenging to my faith. I am sure it is for many parents my age as we struggle with demanding careers, family life and trying to make it all work financially. On top of that, you do your best to live a good life of faith.

Six years ago, I was blessed to have attended a men's retreat at my parish in Indianapolis. At that time, I was also at a very challenging time in my career. The retreat helped me find a focus that would eventually lead me back home.

I know we do not have many ministries in our parish these days that are devoted to younger families in their 30s & 40s. The perception is that they're not interested. I'd like to think I'm not alone. Maybe it is time for us to start. It will happen if we just listen to the Holy Spirit and just take that first step. Our faith community can only grow stronger if we work to build the Kingdom of God together.

Someday, this building in which we celebrate the faith every weekend will be our responsibility. Hopefully, it will still be forming future generations of Catholics with a solid faith and moral leadership. I hope that it continues to be the physical cornerstone of our faith formation, so one day when we are in our nineties, and in our last days of life, we can also be filled with the Holy Spirit when someone comes to give us the Eucharist.

TIRELESS DISCIPLESHIP

The stories we've been hearing these weeks come from the very first chapter of Mark, and they show us the public ministry of Jesus in its infancy. Today's account shows some of the strain or adjustment of his new life of preaching the reign of God, healing the sick, and casting out demons. Notice that after sunset, when darkness ended the workday, people brought the sick and possessed to Jesus. The following day he rose before dawn to get away by himself to pray, but to no avail. Simon Peter and the others don't just look for him, they pursue him, filled with the fervor that his ministry has incited. With the self-sacrificing example he gave until the end of his earthly life, he tells his followers that this is his whole purpose. Through Mark, he is also telling the early church, and he is telling us, that this is our purpose, our vocation: to be tireless in our pursuit of proclaiming the Good News, and in bringing the healing, reconciling touch of Christ to the world.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

We're reading St. Paul's letter to the Corinthians these days. What was Corinth like? It had a beautiful setting on an isthmus, about fifty miles from Athens. The location makes for very easy exchange by sea routes between Greece and Italy, a factor in its economic success even today. In Paul's day it was a cosmopolitan and wealthy city with inhabitants drawn from all over the world, including a sizeable Jewish community. When Paul arrived about the year 50, the city was only about a century old, but already five times the size of Athens. Paul lived in Corinth for a year and a half, and a few years later came back for three months. The community of Christians there struggled against the influence of a very secular and self-indulgent society that was blind to the plight of the poor. Pagan attitudes afflicted the community, which had a way of breaking Paul's heart; he wrote to them sometimes "with many tears" (2 Corinthians 2:4).

Today, Corinth is a small industrial city. Its historic core has been destroyed by a series of earthquakes over the centuries, and what little remained was totally obliterated in a war with Turkey in the 1820s. There's a core city with glamorous shops to catch the tourists, but it is mainly a cargo port, with piles of marble, tiles, and minerals everywhere, a huge oil refinery nearby, a busy canal, a modern fast rail line to Athens, and a meeting point of major highways. Today, the remains of the Temple of Apollo and the marketplace are more ruined than most such sites. The glory of the city Paul knew well has faded, but the relevance of his words shines through the centuries.

A FAMILY PERSPECTIVE

In today's gospel Jesus went to the "house of Andrew and Simon" to relax but discovered that "Simon's mother-in-law was very ill." Like Jesus we come home to relax but are confronted with problems. Take a tip from Andrew & Simon who "told Jesus about it at once."
